Practices:

Fraud, Qui Tam, Civil RICO, Complex Business Litigation, Class Actions, White Collar Defense & Government Investigations

Gopi K. Panchapakesan is a first-chair trial lawyer whose practice focuses on the trial and arbitration of high-stakes business disputes. Most recently, Gopi won a $164 million verdict against LuLaRoe – a multi-level marketing apparel company – in a two-month trial involving claims of fraud, fraudulent transfer, and breach of contract arising out of a $1.8 billion business relationship.

He is an expert in defending class actions, as well as cases brought under the civil RICO statute and False Claims Act. Gopi's broad-based civil practice extends to cases involving commercial fraud, false advertising, unfair competition, trade secret misappropriation, contractual disputes, and employment matters.

Gopi also maintains an active white collar practice. He recently co-tried a three-month federal money laundering case and has successfully resolved environmental investigations brought by the California Attorney General and local air quality management districts.

Named to the Daily Journal's Top 40 Under 40 list, Gopi has tried several arbitrations and jury trials as lead or co-lead counsel. He has successfully defended some of the most significant civil RICO litigation in California, cases that collectively alleged upwards of $1 billion in damages. He also regularly defends multi-national corporations in sprawling consumer class actions involving claims of unfair competition and false advertising. Gopi also defends False Claims Act cases on behalf of government contractors and healthcare providers. Gopi has the expertise to efficiently litigate these matters and understands the pressure points that push a case to conclusion.

Gopi handles tough cases that require him to navigate complex and emerging legal issues. Gopi has recently defended cases involving:

- Website accessibility (an issue that now often arises in the context of False Claims Act cases and class actions);
- The protections afforded by the Communications Decency Act and First Amendment to websites (and their owners) regarding content posted by third parties;

- The heightened scrutiny facing direct selling and multi-level marketing companies; and
- The payment processing industry and the potential liability facing merchants, credit card companies, and financial institutions involved in certain types of transactions.

Companies, both publicly-traded and privately-held, and leading executives entrust Gopi to litigate their complex business disputes. His representative clients include: Carvana, Crimson Pipeline, Digital Realty Trust, Herbalife, Shopify, and Tyler Technologies.

Gopi regularly speaks on panels and publishes articles regarding class actions, the federal civil RICO statute, and trends in arbitration practice, most recently publishing the widely read article, “3 Ways Defendants Can Nip Civil RICO Claims in the Bud,” in Law360.

Gopi has served in numerous leadership roles with organizations that help foster diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) within the legal profession. He currently serves as VP of Professional Development for the South Asian Bar Association (SABA) of North America. Gopi previously served as the Co-President of the Southern California chapter of SABA. In 2022, he received SABA North America’s Rising Star Award. He has served as a fellow with SABA North America’s Leadership Institute and the National Asian Pacific American Bar Association’s Leadership Advancement Program. Gopi has also served on the Board of Directors of the Los Angeles Metropolitan Debate League.
