Bird Marella Principals Regarded as "Leaders of Influence" by Los Angeles Business Journal

Bird Marella principals Gary Lincenberg and Ekwan Rhow have been recognized among the best litigation and trial attorneys in Los Angeles County by the Los Angeles Business Journal. In a special 2021 supplement, "Leaders of Influence: Litigators & Trial Attorneys," the Journal recognized a select number of attorneys who are considered "masters of their craft" and that "can prepare individuals and businesses for any legal issue."

The Journal highlights their areas of expertise and recent victories in high-profile matters that have recently made headlines. Lincenberg is praised for having unparalleled insider knowledge of the prosecuting offices, and for often trying critical, bet-the-company, cases where the client is looking for a proven track record; they referenced his multimillion-dollar win against Northrop Grumman. Rhow is celebrated for being trusted by businesses, both local and global, who entrust him with their most complex matters. The Journal highlighted the complete defense decision he earned, on behalf of long-standing client, JM Eagle – the case involved over $1 billion in claims.

Both Lincenberg and Rhow are Fellows of the American College of Trial Lawyers, top-ranked in Chambers and Partners, and are among the most highly regarded litigators in California.
