Timothy B. Yoo to Speak at UCLA School of Law Copyright Symposium

Bird Marella partner Timothy B. Yoo will be a panelist at the 2024 UCLA School of Law Copyright Symposium on March 8, 2024. Mr. Yoo will be discussing "authorship and AI, community authors and cultural property, and more," as part of a panel of distinguished law professors and thought leaders in the legal industry. The panel is titled “Authorship After Warhol.”

A successful trial lawyer and chair of the firm's intellectual property litigation practice, Mr. Yoo has been recognized as a Top IP Lawyer by the Daily Journal and an IP Trailblazer by the National Law Journal. His recent copyright-infringement victories include securing a dismissal with prejudice for a joint defense group of Korea's largest media companies, and successfully defending K-pop sensation BTS and their label HYBE Corporation by winning judgment on his first and only motion to dismiss. Through his leadership, Bird Marella has become the go-to firm for top global companies and Korean media content providers facing intellectual property litigation in the U.S.
